Page Content: Dear all,

The Isentia portal, from which we curate the daily media summary, is not working this morning. So we have put together a makeshift set of news clippings and social media posts.

Member for Bowman

The Guardian – Scott Morrison's warm welcome to Andrew Laming is a rebuke to Australia's women

This comment piece by Sarah Martin mentions the AEC's investigation into Dr Laming's use of Facebook, but goes into no detail.

Election speculation

The Australian – Shake it off

In this morning's 'Strewth!' column, Alice Workman reports that Prime Minister Scott Morrison has started a diet of meal replacement shakes and speculates that this is a subtle sign that the election could be 'closer than previously thought'.

Electoral Commission of Queensland

Courier Mail – Political parties fined by Electoral Commission of Queensland for election non-compliance

The New Liberals

Representatives of The New Liberals have posted to Twitter that their party has "filed with the AEC" to have the LNP deregistered.

On a personal note, this will be the final media summary from Mark Batistich, who is returning to his ancestral homeland of Adelaide. Thanks for everything Mark. We'll miss you.
